

Contents

In Praise of Flying to Extremes . . . . .	1
Dedication . . . . .	12
Foreword . . . . .	13
Acknowledgements . . . . .	15
Introduction . . . . .	18
1. Taking Off with a Bang . . . . .	23
2. Prospectors, Alcohol and Fights in Yellowknife . . . . .	30
3. Picking up Trappers and School Kids in Fort Smith . . . . .	47
4. Gold, Dead Bodies, and Airplane Crashes on the Nahanni River .	61
5. The Most Atrocious Flight: Latitude 80° North in the dark at 60 below . . . . .	77
6. Mayday: Load Shift after Takeoff . . . . .	93
7. Sinking with a Floatplane in the Arctic Ocean . . . . .	106
8. In the Frozen Darkness of the Arctic Islands . . . . .	136
9. Crashing through the Ice . . . . .	157
10. Crazy Flights in December . . . . .	171
11. Around the Pole with a Guitar . . . . .	189
12. Another Mayday: Totally Iced Up and Falling out of the Sky .	212
13. Typical Insane Flights . . . . .	241
Epilogue . . . . .	263
Glossary . . . . .	267
Indigenous Names of Communities . . . . .	273
Bibliography . . . . .	274
Index of names . . . . .	276
Other books published by Dominique Prinet . . . . .	281

Cover Photo: Noon in February 1969 near the North Pole, at latitude 80° N and –60° F. The flight was atrocious (Chapter 5).